Introduction

Welcome to the study of Western Civilization! During this course we will study European history from the Protestant Reformation of the sixteenth century to the current day. We will spend much of our time discussion events and ideas which emanated from England, France, Germany, and Spain, but we will also spend some time talking about eastern Europe and the United States. We will use primary sources (documents written in the period under discussion) to examine the development of social, political, religious, and cultural elements in modern western society. As you examine these documents, you should always ask yourself, “What makes this a ‘modern’ idea or event, and what relevance does it have (or not) to my life?”

In order to make good oral and written evaluations of the sources we will read, you must always consider the biases, both positive and negative, of the author of the source as well as the nature of that source itself. All historical sources are not created equal; you’ll need to make informed judgments about each of them. Since this is a history course, the topics of our discussions will be roughly chronological (beginning with the events and ideas of the Protestant Reformation and concluding as close to the present day as possible), but we will be more concerned with analytical methods than with strict chronology. In other words, you will spend more time in this class reading and analyzing primary source materials than you will spend memorizing names and dates.

Student Learning Outcomes

Upon successful completion of the course you will be able to

- construct an analytical essay using related primary source material as evidence to support an argument in answer to a specific historical question.
- explain the significance of terms (people, events, places, dates) in relation to the development of the social, political, religious, and cultural elements of modern western society.
- explain the connections between ideas and events from the 16th -20th centuries and modern western culture in the 21st century.

For Your Information

Attendance: After you have missed four class periods for any reason, your final average for the course will be reduced by one percentage point (i.e. from 84 to 83) for each additional absence.

Honor code: Any violation of the honor code (such as plagiarism or cheating) will be dealt with according to UNCG’s academic integrity policy. I am particularly concerned about plagiarism from the web. I do not want you to use websites for any of the writing assignments unless a particular website is specifically included as part of the assignment. The primary sources and the lectures will provide you with sufficient information to complete the assignments. For specific explanations about UNCG’s academic integrity policy, see the Student Affairs website at http://academicintegrity.uncg.edu/.

Reading Advice

Because most of these documents will be totally unfamiliar to you, I recommend taking notes on them as you read. It is also useful to write a brief summary (2-3 sentences) of each document so that you can remember the contents of each text for class discussion. Taking notes on the longer primary sources is especially important. Finally, I recommend reading each of the shorter documents more than once. Sometimes it will take two (or even three) readings for something to make sense to you. Because the amount of reading for our course is fairly small, you’ll have plenty of time for re-reading.

Supplemental Reading

I will occasionally use on-line sources as supplemental materials. Many of the links will be to the Internet Modern History Sourcebook (http://www.fordham.edu/halsall/mod/modsbook.html). The links to these texts will be available on the course’s Blackboard site.

Blackboard

Be sure to check on Blackboard (https://blackboard.uncg.edu/webapps/portal/frameset.jsp) for course announcements, assignments, and links to important websites.

Adverse Weather Conditions

If you think that the university might be closed due to weather, either call the UNCG Adverse Weather Line at (336) 334-4400 or check the university’s website (www.uncg.edu). If the university is open, I will hold class.

Grade Breakdown

Discussion Participation 10%
First Midterm 20%
Communist Manifesto paper 20%
Second Midterm 20%
Final Exam 30%

Discussion Preparation and Written Assignments
Discussion: To participate actively in the class discussions, you will need to read the materials assigned for each lecture before the day of that lecture. Your discussion grade will be based not only on the quantity but also on the quality of your comments. Remember that asking a question about something you didn’t understand in the readings is a good way of participating in the discussion.

Midterms and Final: All three exams will be take-home assignments. The two midterms will consist of two parts: short identification essays explaining the significance of a particular term (person, event, place, date, etc.) and a longer essay based on primary source material. The final will keep these two components (identifications and primary source essay) and add a cumulative thought question.

Communist Manifesto essay: You will write a 3-4 page formal essay (with footnotes!) on one of a choice of topics concerning this revolutionary document.
