This course will survey both chronologically and topically the history of North Carolina from its beginning in the 17th century up to the present time. We will seek to understand the events of this history in terms of individual decisions and the forces that shaped them, which have created the North Carolina of today. As this is a writing and research intensive section, we will spend time on acquiring the skills needed to research an historical topic and to present your research in writing. Learning about the kinds of sources to use and how to cite them correctly is also emphasized in this class.

1. Required texts: North Carolina History through Four Centuries by William S. Powell; The North Carolina Experience: An Interpretive and Documentary History edited by Lindley S. Butler and Alan D. Watson. The first is a general history text; the second is a collection of primary sources and essays.
2. Attendance: You are expected to attend class regularly. You may have 4 unexcused absences. If you exceed this, you will be dropped from the class. To receive an excused absence, you must contact me within 48 hours after your absence, by phone or e-mail. Most acceptable excuse: you are too ill to be in class.
3. Papers and student presentations: Each of you will be actively involved in your own instruction, by researching and writing two short papers from a list of topics I will provide. You will also each take a turn in teaching the class, by presenting the results of your research in an oral presentation. (If making a talk is not your thing, you may write a third paper instead). After each paper is turned in and critiqued, you will be given the opportunity to revise and resubmit it. There will also be some informal writing assignments done in class.
4. Grades: Each paper will be 20% of your final grade; each oral presentation will be 10%. The mid-term and the exam are each worth 10%. Class participation is 20%, which includes your informal writing assignments and discussion of them.
5. The class will be a mixture of lecture and discussion. Your thoughts and observations will be valued!
6. There is a lot of reading for this class, especially early in the semester. The following class schedule gives the time frame for completing the reading, which will track our coverage of the material in class. Suggestion: read your assignments before the lectures.

This is a writing and research- intensive class. Your formal writing will consist of the 2 research papers. The intensity will consist of more time spent in getting all this right than is possible in a regular class. We will concentrate on how to differentiate between primary and secondary sources, and how to evaluate and use them. Constructing a paper, which makes your information and conclusions readable, is another goal Using correct citations and bibliographies is also a priority.

You will also have a number of informal writing assignments, done in class. Here the idea is to get your critical thoughts about the readings and lectures down on paper. These won't receive a letter grade, and spelling, punctuation, and grammar don't matter. I have given the first assignment on your syllabus. Others will be announced on Blackboard, or in class.
