GOALS: ENCOUNTERING HISTORY

This course serves as an introduction to American History at the college level. The purpose of the course is to enable you to use texts, documents, and secondary readings to understand the life experiences of ordinary people from different races, cultures, and time periods. This course will also help you learn to synthesize information and improve your ability to understand historical changes. We will explore how material conditions, that is, the environment, production and consumption of goods, and use of social space interacted with religious, political, and interpersonal beliefs to shape experience. Our goal is to arrive at an understanding of why and how life in the past differed from region to region and changed over time in the United States up to 1865.
In addition we will examine the "construction" of history in three ways: one, by developing our own interpretations of primary sources; two, by discussing important and sometimes conflicting secondary works; third, by using primary and secondary materials to develop interpretations of important historical developments. In these ways, we can begin to see that history is an interpretation of the past shaped by the concerns of the present.

REQUIRED TEXT

This text is required and is available for purchase at the UNCG Bookstore.

Student Learning Outcomes

1. Students will learn about the material conditions and cultural adaptations of the diverse peoples in America up to 1865.

2. Students will know the difference between primary and secondary sources, will be able to locate each kind of source via the library shelves and electronic media, and will have an understanding of how interpret both kinds of sources.

3. Students will know how to use historical analysis and historical imagination to understand the lives of common people of different races, ethnicities, classes, and gender in the American past.

4. Students will gain experience in presenting their ideas in writing, in class discussion, and in group projects.
REQUIREMENTS

Class Preparation:

The most important requirements for this course are careful reading of the assignments, attending lectures and taking notes, completion of written work, and thoughtful participation in class discussion and group exercises. The assigned reading must be done before coming to discussion class. To prepare for class participation, the student should take notes on the reading and develop questions for class discussion. Short written exercises will be assigned throughout the semester. There will be one mid-term exam and one final exam and a final group presentation. Attendance is required and more than three absences will adversely affect your grade. Please turn off your cell phones during class.

Final Project:

The final project is based on group work that will utilize primary and secondary sources and the understanding of developments in American history gained during the course. Each group will create a class presentation based on an important social movement, historical development, or political event and demonstrate its impact on a family, a collection of individuals, or a community. The final project can take the form of a play, video, or a web page if approved by your section leader and or Dr. Hunter well in advance. Detailed instructions will be provided later in the semester.

Course Grades:

- Class Participation & Group Work 25%
- Short papers and written exercises 20%
- Mid-Term Exam 10%
- Final Project 15%
- Final Exam 30% = 100%
