This course will survey both chronologically and topically the history of the United States from the first English settlement at Jamestown in 1607 through the Civil War. We will seek to understand the events of our early history in terms of individual decisions and the forces that shaped them, creating a unique American culture. To enrich our understanding of this history, each of you will do a research project on some aspect of it, either presenting this to the class orally or by writing a paper.

1. Required text: Alan Brinkley, American History, A Survey. Vol. I, to 1877.
In your reading assignments, the chapters cited refer to the Brinkley text. It is very important for you to read your text BEFORE coming to class, a half of a chapter before each class. You may purchase your text at the university bookstore, which will have the latest edition. I suggest that you go online to find an earlier edition, which will be much cheaper. Be sure to get volume one, however.
2. Attendance: You are expected to attend class regularly and to be on time. You may have 4 unexcused absences. To be excused, e-mail me within 48 hours after your absence. I will let you know if your excuse is accepted. Most acceptable excuse: you are too ill to be in class.
3. Tests and grades: There will be two one-hour tests and a final exam. You will be given study guides for each. The tests and the exam are each 25% of your final grade. Your research project is also 25%.
4. This class follows a lecture format, with times for class discussions also. You should take notes as you listen, and feel free to ask questions or contribute your comments at any time.
5. I will provide a list of research topics. You may choose one of these, or propose one of your own, subject to approval. If presenting orally, you may partner with another student. If writing a paper, you will work on your own.
