The purpose of this course is to introduce graduate students to some of the most significant scholarly works on the Market Revolution, ca. 1815-1850. Students will critically analyze historical monographs through class discussion and written reviews and will write either a research paper based on primary and secondary sources or a historiographical paper.

Required books:

Assignments:
Besides reading a book a week (or more) you will turn in a written review for two of the assigned books. In addition, one week you will lead discussion of the weekly readings in class. Class discussion is central to this course and will form a significant part of your grade. Finally, you will write an article manuscript critique and a ~20 page research OR historiographical paper due at the end of the semester.

Doing the book reviews:
You will prepare professional-quality book reviews of each of your assigned weekly readings. Professional quality means that your review could be published in an academic history journal, and, thus, the review should expose the author’s thesis and main supporting points, discuss and evaluate the evidence presented by the author to prove his/her thesis, suggest how this book fits into the historiography on that subject, and tell who the author is. Do NOT tell me that the book is “interesting” for that means absolutely nothing. Do tell me why the book is important, what its flaws (if any) are, and why we must all be familiar with its thesis in order to better understand the Market Revolution. Browse through the book reviews in the journals Reviews in American History, Journal of the Early Republic, William and Mary Quarterly (all are in the library or available online through the J-Stor database) for examples of what I am asking for. You may consult published reviews of the books you are working on, but do not copy and paste from them, as that is cheating, and I want to read your words not someone else’s. Each review should be double spaced and about 3 pages in length, no more than 4 pages and no less than 2.

Article manuscript critique:
To give you practice critiquing a work-in-progress and therefore becoming more skilled at critiquing your own work, you will write a referee report of one of my on-going article drafts. This activity is how academic journals assess the soundness and originality of an article submission. Write a two-page report outlining the topic of the article and its contribution (or lack thereof) to the literature on the Market Revolution. Then offer suggestions for strengthening the article’s argument, organization, language, or anything else you think it needs to be the best piece possible on its topic. This exercise is worth 10% of your overall grade and is due on November 11.

Grading:
- Written Reviews (2): 10% each 20%
- Discussion Leadership 10%
- Discussion Participation 20%
- Critique of Dr. O’Brien’s paper draft 10%
- Final Paper 40%
  100%

Schedule:
All of the articles listed in the schedule are available on the J-STOR, Project MUSE, or EBSCO-Host databases through the UNCG Library database webpages.
