CLG3. Appreciate the historical roots of current political debates and cultural currents.

CLG4. Leadership, participation, and group work

REQUIRED READINGS

The required readings are drawn from a variety of sources and include one book (see below) and PDFs and online links. Other than the book, the readings are all available online at our course page in Canvas. Occasional assessments and assignments will be located on a Wordpress site accessible through a link on Canvas.

Please see below under “Logistics and Technology” for more information about Canvas and these online assignments. Students are also encouraged to purchase a binder in which they keep print-out of these online sources and bring the binder to class for accessibility, organization, and exam review.

The following book is available for purchase at the bookstore. You may choose to purchase this book elsewhere but you need to purchase the same edition (check publisher and year) to participate in class discussions:

Karl Marx and Friedrich Engels, The Communist Manifesto (Signet, 2011).
ISBN 9780451531841

A NOTE ON METHODOLOGY

This class offers a perspective on the study of history that will likely differ from the history classes you have taken until now. The class is constructed from five modules, or units, that center on key time periods in European history along the theme “European Revolutions, 1789–1989.” The modules are primarily organized around primary sources, or documents produced by historical actors in their respective times periods. These primary sources include political texts and treatises, excerpts from memoirs, poetry, novels, music, fine arts, and film.

Rather than assign a textbook, each module also contains at least one secondary source, which provides historical narrative about the time period under consideration. The central class goal is to move beyond history-as-dates to understand how these primary sources best convey the themes and problems of intellectual, cultural, political, and everyday life of the historical moment and to begin to weigh the secondary sources of historians to determine their assessments of these materials.

The lecture will offer some historical narrative to supplement the secondary sources, but the focus will be on group and individual work to analyze the relationship between primary sources and this historical narrative. To be considered prepared for class you need to come to class with the texts (either the book or your print-outs) and with your answers to the guiding questions provided online. Guiding questions are due at 10am before the class on the day the sources are discussed. Friday online assessments/ assignments are due by 1pm that day or as specified. You should be prepared to discuss the sources on the days designated in the syllabus.

By the end of the semester, you will learn to situate a primary source in its historical context (where it comes from), what questions to ask of the documents (analysis), how to construct an argument that draws on a variety of sources (thesis), and to make broad thematic connections using this material (critical thinking).

LOGISTICS AND TECHNOLOGY

It is your responsibility to seek assistance with Canvas if you have difficulties. If you have questions about accessing or submitting material on Canvas, please contact 6Tech at <https://6-tech.uncg.edu> or 336-256-TECH (8324) and you will be directed to a Canvas representative. The professor cannot provide technological assistance. You will be held responsible for missed or late assignments due to technological problems.

To access readings, locate the “Modules” section of the course site to find links to each week's online reading material. You may need to configure your browser to allow Canvas to display information from external websites.

PARTICIPATION AND “BLENDED” LEARNING

Discussion with partners, in groups, and online is a critical part of assignments and assessments in this course.

Students should not expect to be passive participants in a “traditional” lecture course. Rather, students are required to come prepared having answered the guiding questions provided along with each assignment reading and to bring questions of their own for discussion. Discussion with partners and in groups will be integrated into class time on Mondays and Wednesdays.

The Friday time slot will generally be reserved for online learning, activities, and assessments. Unless otherwise noted, Friday classes will not require physical presence but will require online assignments and assessments with strict timed deadlines. (Those known exceptions are marked by “Face to Face” in the calendar below. The weekly online component of the class will be introduced before the Friday class and Dr. Levine will generally be available during the class time via email or chat to answer questions about the assignment. The online learning component uses technology to enhance the learning objectives of the course as states above, in particular, through the use of map exercises, peer review, and multi-media online exhibits, films, and group forums.

For each module you will be assigned a discussion partner (or group) next to whom you should sit and who will be your point-person for all exercises assigned both in and out of class for the duration of the unit.

Unless otherwise noted the online assignments will comprise part of the 20% participation grade. To be prepared students must read and prepare the guiding questions for the texts on the dates indicated and complete all online assignments. If it becomes apparent that the student is not prepared or has not completed online assignments, this will impact his/her participation grade negatively.

WHAT DO I DO IF I HAVE A QUESTION ABOUT CLASS

Often times in the semester you will have a question—I can't find the reading, what was it that Dr. Levine said we were supposed to do, etc.—in that case you should go through the following steps: 1) consult the syllabus in the print 2) consult the online modules in Canvas and look to see if there were any announcements / recent updates 3) email your assigned partner / group member to see if they know the answer 4) if you are still stumped, email either the graduate assistance or Dr. Levine to inquire.

ASSIGNMENTS

Essay questions are provisional. Actual assignments will be posted online the week before they are due.

Online Assignments: These exercises and assessments will generally take place on Friday and will vary from map and term identifications to short answer questions to multimedia group projects. I reserve the right to add additional in class “pop” quizzes should students continuously show up to class unprepared. There are no make-up online assignments. If you miss the quiz you receive a “0” for that quiz.

Most of the Online Assignments will count towards the participation grade. The following assignments will be graded: Online Assignments #3, #7, #8 and #9.

First Paper Assignment, Thinking like an Historian: (due: September 21st): Create a fictional historical character – such as a conservative politician, a liberal reformer, a worker, or a factory owner – from the early 19th century. In the voice of your character, write a 4 to 5 page double-spaced response to the claims made by Marx and Engels in The Communist Manifesto. Do you agree or disagree with their arguments? What might you find provocative or dangerous about their assertions? Remember to be true to the ideas and “mentalities” of the time period; be careful not to impose your 21st century sensibilities on your character. It is essential to demonstrate both an appreciation of your character’s interests and goals, as well as an understanding of the arguments and claims of Marx and Engels. Successful papers will address at least three (3) points made in the Manifesto. Your paper will be graded on creativity, argumentation, and ability to “think” in the historical period.

Second Paper Assignment, Writing a Thesis Statement: (due: October 12th): Write a 4-5 page double-spaced paper that addresses the debate about the origins of World War I. How do Clark and Fischer present two different accounts of the origins of war. How do they differ in their sources and methodology? Do they consider both short- and long-term) causes? For this paper you will be required to come up with your own thesis statement that makes a claim about the validity of one of these positions. Your paper will be graded first and foremost for its ability to present a cogent and coherent argument using evidence from the primary and secondary sources.

Oral Presentation (in class: November, 28th): During our final class, students will present as groups on their film for 7–10 minute presentations (with 3–5 additional minutes for questions), worth 10% of the overall course grade and given as a group. The oral presentation should present a group answer to the historian’s questions about the film as stated in the third paper assignment. All students must speak at some point during the presentation. Students are encouraged to consult the University Speaking Center for assistance in this endeavor. Power Point presentations are encouraged but not required.

Final Exam (Monday, December 5th): There will be a final exam for this class with definitions of key terms and events mentioned in lectures, identification of passages from texts, images (film and painting) discussed and viewed in class, and one short essay on themes traced throughout. Each of these sections will be weighed equally.

RULES AND PROCEDURES

Late Work

No late work is accepted. All students are required to complete all assignments for the course on the due date specified.

Online Work and Guiding questions. All students are required to complete all reading assignments. The assignments are designed to guide you through the reading and should make it more accessible and easier to understand! You are encouraged to work on these assignments in groups or with your partners as long as you post your own work. You may miss 3 of these reading assignments without penalty. However, please use your 3 unpenalized assignments wisely, reserving them for emergencies or serious sickness. More than 3 absences will lower your final grade. After you miss 3 reading assignments, you begin to lose a point for every missed reading assignment from your class participation grade (see below).

Attendance

Attendance at class is mandatory. A student who is not present at the beginning of class will be marked “absent.” You may miss 3 classes without penalty. However, please use your 3 unpenalized absences wisely, reserving them emergencies or serious sickness. More than 3 absences will lower your final grade. Missing a total of 9 or more classes (one-third of the face to face lecture/discussion classes) will result in an automatic “F” for the course. No exceptions. Students are responsible for completing on time all work assigned (or due) on days in which they are absent.

Punctuality

It is imperative that you come to class on time. The lecture starts at the beginning of the hour and ends ten minutes before the hour on the dot. If you arrive late, you miss vital information about assignments given at the beginning of class. Similarly, it is also appreciated if you do not pack up your things until after the lecture is complete. In an effort to encourage punctuality, three late arrivals will constitute one absence, and therefore, the removal of one participation point, as described above.

Cell phones & Laptops

There are no laptops permitted in this classroom. Students are encouraged to take notes on paper and transfer your notes to laptops during your exam preparation.

Your cell phone must be turned off before class begins and remain out of view. If your phone is viewable or goes off in the classroom, you will receive a failing grade for participation/attendance on that day and you will be asked to leave.

Students who abuse technology in the classroom risk earning a failing grade for participation/attendance and being removed from the course.

Name Cards

You will receive a name card on the first day of class. It is your responsibility to keep the name card and bring it to class. You must keep the name card in front of you at all times and should expect to be called on for discussion.

Academic Integrity and Plagiarism

All students are expected to abide by the UNCG Honor Code. Please visit the following link: Academic Integrity Policy: <http://academicintegrity.uncg.edu/complete/>. Depending on the severity of the offense, students risk receiving a zero for the assignment, an F for the final grade of F for the course and/or having an academic violation placed on their record.

Adverse Weather Conditions

If you think that the university might be closed due to weather, either call the UNCG Adverse Weather Line at (336) 334-4400 or check the university's website (www.uncg.edu). If the university is open, I will hold class. Please note: If the university is closed, we will revert to the online class scheduled for the week.

OFFICE HOURS

One individual meeting is required during the regularly scheduled class time of Friday, September 7th between 11-noon. Dr. Levine is generally available by email and chat during the Friday time class when online assessments and assignments are assigned. Otherwise, face to face office hours will be held on Mondays noon to 1pm, and by appointment. This is an open time when students are welcome to come visit the instructor with questions about the readings and class discussion. If you cannot make the regularly scheduled office hours, please feel free to make another appointment.

GRADING

Attendance and participation is an essential part of this class. Class time will be divided between the instructor's lectures, which will provide crucial historical context and thematic overview, discussions of the texts (reading, viewing, listening) assigned for that week, and workshops of specific historical skills, including thesis writing and paper preparation.

Students will receive guiding questions for the readings and are expected to come to class prepared to answer and discuss the guiding questions. The class goals are to engage one another in friendly debate, to express opinions, and to learn from one another.

Participation will be noted on a daily basis in accordance with these expectations.

Grading will be weighed according to the following formula and scales:

Attendance (including punctuality)	5%
Class participation (including online activities)	10%
Graded online assignments: (average)	15%
First Paper:	15%
Second Paper:	20%
Oral presentation	15%
