This course surveys the history of the ancient Near Eastern (= Western Asian) and Mediterranean world from about 10,000 BCE to about 500 CE. This means that it covers a time period far greater than that from 500 CE to the present. It means also that a tremendous amount of stuff happened, particularly many “firsts”—agriculture, cities and civilization, writing, war making, kingship, empire, democracy, monotheism, and more. To try to make sense of all this, we are going to approach developments on the basis of a simple principle governing human behavior: “If it ain’t broke, people don’t fix it”. What this means in the context of ancient history is that if what people—human societies small or large—are doing (organizing themselves, gaining nutrition, dealing with outsiders’ attacks, managing relations with divine forces, etc.) works, people/societies don’t change their practices. When we see change or innovation, what we are seeing is not “progress” but response to failure or “adaptation” to an altered “environment”. We must then ask “what went wrong?” What made longstanding practices ineffective? How did new practices represent successful response or adaptation to change. Given this approach, think of this course as subtitled “Challenges and Changes: The Human Experience in Western Asia and the Mediterranean, 10,000 BCE to 500 CE”.

We will be using Ralph Mathisen, Ancient Mediterranean Civilizations, 2nd ed., as our basic narrative guide and a companion volume Sources in Ancient Mediterranean Civilizations, for most of our primary source readings. Occasional web readings and handouts supplement these volumes. The syllabus lists the reading assignments for each class meeting. These are to be completed by the day they appear as assignments in the syllabus. There are also brief Reading Responses due for almost every class. These assignments appear in the syllabus after the reading assignments. They are to be completed and emailed to me before class time on the day assigned. My email is sqruzick@uncg.edu.

There will be 3 examinations of equal value—last one is not cumulative. Study guides will be provided before each exam.

Grading:
3 Exams 75%
Reading Responses 25%

Full attendance is expected. More than 2 unexcused absences will result in lowering of your grade.

Class Schedule (AMC = Mathisen, Ancient Mediterranean Civilizations)

8/20 Introduction: What is History? What is Ancient History? What happened 100,000 to 10,000 BCE?
8/22  Mesopotamia General Picture 10,000-4,000 BCE                 AMC 3-33

8/27  Sumerian Cities, Priests, and Kings      AMC 37-58; Sources 3-10; Gilgamesh
      Epic;   http://www.ancienttexts.org/library/mesopotamian/gilgamesh

Reading Response #1: According to “The Creation of Humans by Enki and Ninmah”, what are humans created for? According to the Gilgamesh story, what is the ultimate lot of humankind? (Make sure you read the whole of the Gilgamesh epic including the full story of his journey to Utnanapishtim in the online version.) According to the Enuma Elish story (Source
#1), what can Marduk do that merits given him supreme power?

8/29  Patterns of Power: Hegemonies and Early Empires      AMC 58-66 (up to Law Code part);
       Sources 43-48

Reading Response #2: Most of the kings in the Sumerian King List (Source #15) are characterized only by the lengths of their reigns—nothing about their origins or background.
What are the exceptions to this? What inferences or conjectures might you make about political circumstances surrounding their kingships?

9/ 3  Laws and Babylonian Society     AMC 66-70; Sources, 52-63 (#18,19,20)

Reading Response #3: Who did the actual destroying of Agade in “The Cursing of Agade”?
What kind of actual event may lie behind this story of the anger of Enlil? How do Ur-Nammu and Hammurabi explain that their “lawmaking” is a result of the will of the gods in Sources 19 and 20)?

9/10  Egypt through Old Kingdom      AMC 75-92; Sources, 13-15; Theology of Memphis
      (handout); Sources 67-70

Reading Response #4: What can we learn from “The Autobiography of Weni” about h the organization of government in Old Kingdom Egypt? Why do you think Weni is so concerned with documenting his great services to the King and so proud of the fact that the King has a great sarcophagus delivered to him?

9/12  Egypt: Disintegrations and Restorations     AMC 92-100; Sources 77-80

Reading Response #5: Compared to the conditions in Egypt evident in “The Autobiography of Weni”, what seems to be wrong with Egypt—what’s missing—at the time described by “The Admonitions of Ipuwer”? (Note: contrary to the dating suggested in the book, this is better dated to the 1st Intermediate Period, ca. 2100 BCE.)

9/17 Imperial Egypt     AMC 100-106; Sources 93-99
Reading Response #6: What problems does this agreement between the Egyptian and Hittite kings deal with and try to resolve?

9/19 Coastal Peoples, Hebrews AMC 107-135; Sources 103-110

Reading Response #7: Remembering that the Mycenaean tablets translated here came from the royal palace at Pylos (in western Greece), who seems on the evidence of the Ebla tablets (#30) and the Pylos tablets (#31) to be managing economic and commercial activities at Ebla and Pylos?

9/24 1st EXAM

9/26 Iron Age Empires AMC 135-164; Sources 135-150

http://armieswiata.com/armies/aasyrian.html
http://www.livius.org/da-dd/darius/darius_i_t08.html

Reading Response: What links do you see between Darius’ Behistun inscription and those of Shalmaneser III and Sennacherib? (Consider this question, but do not submit a written response to it)

10/1 Greece through Archaic Age AMC 167-189; Sources 171-177

Reading Response #8: Given what is revealed in Hesiod’s “Works and Days”, how does agriculture seem to be organized in the Archaic Greek world? Is it overseen by state officials (as in Mesopotamia or Egypt or Mycenaean Greece?)? Is it done on a collaborative, communal basis? Is it done on a private, individual basis?

10/3 Elements of Greek Civilization AMC 190-195; Sources 180-188

Reading Response #9: After reading the selections by or about Sappho, Pythagoras, and Pindar, discuss what different human capabilities these figures display or praise.

10/8 Persian Threat/Greek Response AMC 197-217

10/10 Athens and Radical Democracy AMC 217-236; Sources 201-205; 209-220

Reading Response #10: Why does the Old Oligarch think that democracy is not the best kind of government? Why does Pericles think democracy is the best kind of government?

10/15 FALL BREAK

10/17 Arche and Anarchy AMC 237-240; Sources 239-242
Reading Response #11: What does the Pelopidas story reveal about the state of affairs in southern Greece in the 4th century BCE?
