This course will survey both chronologically and topically the history of North Carolina from its beginning in the 17th century up to the present time. We will seek to understand the events of this history in terms of individual decisions and the forces that shaped them, which have created the North Carolina of today.

1. Required texts: North Carolina History through Four Centuries by William S. Powell; The North Carolina Experience: An Interpretive and Documentary History edited by Lindley S. Butler and Alan D. Watson. The first is a general history text; the second is a collection of primary sources and essays.
2. Attendance: You are expected to attend class regularly. If you decide to leave the course, it is your responsibility to drop the class through the Registrar's office to prevent an F for the course. Students who have 5 unexcused absences will be dropped by the instructor. To receive an excused absence, you must contact me within 48 hours after your absence, by phone or e-mail. Most acceptable excuse: you are too ill to be in class.
3. Papers and student presentations: Each of you will be actively involved in your own instruction, by researching and writing two short papers from a list of topics I will provide. You will also each take a turn in teaching the class, by presenting the results of your research in an oral presentation. (If making a talk is not your thing, you may write a third paper instead.)
4. Grades: Each paper will be 25% of your final grade; each oral presentation will be 12.5%. The mid-term will be 25%. If you decide, after all these grades are in, that your grade needs bringing up, you may take the optional take-home exam. Then your grades will be: each paper is 20%, each presentation 10%, mid-term and final each 20%.
5. The class will be a mixture of lecture and discussion. Your thoughts and observations will be valued!
6. There is a lot of reading for this class, especially early in the semester. The following class schedule gives the time frame for completing the reading, which will track our coverage of the material in class. Suggestion: read your text before the related documents. After reading each document, write a couple of sentences in your notebook to summarize it. These documents and essays may be one source for your research papers.
