COURSE DESCRIPTION:

This course provides an introduction to the social, cultural, political and economic history of the United States since the end of the Civil War. Because of its broad historical sweep, the topics covered are not comprehensive. No single course can cover all of the important issues over one hundred and fifty years of American history. Therefore the course focuses upon selected events, trends, historical figures, and social issues that are most revealing of their times and that address topics that have been of the greatest current interest to historians. Special attention will be paid to issues of ethnic and racial diversity and American citizenship, to social inequalities and movements for social justice, and to the development of the United States into a global superpower. The weekly readings have been especially chosen to familiarize students with the challenge of interpreting primary source documents, and introduce them to the range of interpretative problems that arise in the study of American history. It is hoped that the material explored in this course will provide the student with a springboard to further study in American history.

COURSE OBJECTIVES:

-- Students will establish a strong foundation of knowledge in the major themes and events in American history since 1865.

-- Students will improve their ability to analyze and interpret historical documents.

-- Students will improve their ability to make historical arguments, drawing upon primary source documents.

-- Students will improve their writing and verbal skills.
COURSE POLICIES:

Attendance:

A student who is not present at the beginning of class will be marked “absent.” More than five absences will lower your Final Grade by one-third of a grade for each subsequent absence (that is, your sixth absence will cause a “B” to become a “B-,” your seventh will make it a “C+,” your eighth will make it a “C,” etc.). Missing a total of 14 or more classes for any reason (one-third of the semester) will result in an automatic “F” for the course. No exceptions. Please use your 5 absences wisely by saving them for emergencies or severe illness. Students are responsible to complete on time all work assigned or due on days in which they are absent.

Participation:

Your participation grade will be based on the overall quality of your contributions in the discussion sections—not the quantity of contributions you make. Please make your contributions informed, intelligent, and constructive. You must be attentive and awake during class. Sleeping in class will cause you to be marked “absent”—so do not bother coming to class if you cannot remain conscious! Cell phones should be turned off and stored away. No talking, texting, e-mailing or internet surfing during class. Students must complete the reading assignments in time to participate in their weekly discussion sections with your assigned Teaching Assistant.

Quizzes:

Every week, there will be in-class quizzes on the readings to encourage you to keep up with the reading. Quizzes will take place at the beginning of discussion sections on Mondays. If you miss a quiz due to lateness or absence, you must do a short paper as a replacement or else receive a zero for the quiz. No more than two quizzes can be made up.

Written Work:

There will be one term paper of 1500-1800 words in length (app. 5 pages). You may write your term paper on one of two assigned topics. If you choose Topic #1 your paper is due on February 27; if you choose Topic #2 your paper is due on April 24. If you miss the deadline for the first topic, you must choose Topic #2. An assignment sheet will details about the term paper topics will be distributed in class. In order to pass this course you must hand in all written work on time and complete all assignments.

Academic Integrity Policy:

All work submitted in your name must be your own original work for this class with proper citation or credit given to all sources. All papers will be turned in using the “Safe Assignment” function on Blackboard which automatically scans your paper for plagiarism. Each student should be familiar with the Academic Integrity Policy, and the penalties for plagiarism. Refer to this address on the UNCG website for more details:
