

The World in the Twentieth Century – 1900-1945
Spring 2013
History 217 Section 07

Human blunders usually do more to shape history than human wickedness. A. J. P. Taylor

Instructor: James Hall jwhall@uncg.edu

Office: MHRA 2112

Office Hours: Mondays and Wednesdays from 12 – 2 or by appointment

I. COURSE DESCRIPTION:

By building on the profound transformations set in motion by the Industrial Revolution of the 18th and 19th centuries, the first half of the 20th century was arguably the most significant 50 year period in all of human history. By the start of the 20th century scientific and technological advances had markedly transformed the world we live in, ushering in an era of even greater change which eventually culminated with the atomic age in 1945. This period includes two global wars, the Great Depression, colonial domination of the non-Western world, and the rise of totalitarianism, as well as other factors which affect the world we live in today.

II. COURSE AIMS AND OBJECTIVES

Students who complete the course will be able to:

- 1) Understand that history is an interpretation of the past, and not memorization of dates and facts.
- 2) Analyze historical duration, succession, and change in terms of human agency and larger systems or structures in a wide variety of places and periods.
- 3) Use historical thinking to contextualize and analyze primary and secondary sources representing different points of view.
- 4) Conduct original research by investigating and interpreting primary and secondary sources.
- 5) Use evidence-based reasoning to interpret the past coherently while developing and presenting an original argument, orally and in writing.
- 6) Acquire a general knowledge of world history from 1900-1945

III. FORMAT AND PROCEDURES:

Instruction: Because of the size of the class we will have less time for discussion than I would like, but I will occasionally ask questions, and I certainly encourage you to ask questions when you have them. That being said, the format will largely be one of lectures delivered by the instructor, along with pictures, maps, video clips and movies - all of which expand upon the lecture and reading material. In addition, there may be a guest lecturer on one subject or another.

Attendance: Attendance is required, not optional. However, I will allow everyone a single unexcused absence - otherwise only properly documented absences will be excused. All unexcused absences beyond the single one allowed will affect your final grade.

There will be an attendance sheet passed around each day, and it is your responsibility to make sure you have signed it.

Participation: Come to class prepared to listen, take notes, and ask questions where needed. You will be allowed to use laptops to take notes, and e-readers for some of the reading materials, but no other electronic devices are to be used during class time. Furthermore, class time is exactly that – do not use laptops or tablets for anything other than matters pertaining to the course while we are in class.

Quizzes: There will be quizzes given occasionally, at random intervals throughout the semester. These will serve to keep you on track with your readings, allow you to gauge how well you are absorbing the reading material, and constitute the primary element in your participation grade. Given that these will be administered at the beginning of the class period, you need to ensure that you are on time.

Writing Assignments: There will be two writing assignments given during the course. The exact details have yet to be determined, but one of the projects will be a book review from a work of history, and the second assignment will be a film review.

Grades: Your grade will be determined using the following components:

Mid-term exam:	30%
Final Exam:	30%
Writing Assignments:	30%
Participation and Quizzes:	10%

IV. Academic Integrity

Each student is expected to abide by the UNCG Code of Academic Integrity. All work you turn in should be your own or should carry the proper citation for any outside sources used.

Please review the academic integrity policy as outlined by the university by visiting <http://sa.uncg.edu/handbook/academic-integrity-policy/>

V. Accommodations for students with disabilities

In compliance with the UNCG policy, I am available to discuss appropriate academic accommodations that may be required for student with disabilities. Requests for academic accommodations are to be made during the first three weeks of the semester, except for unusual circumstances, so arrangements can be made. Students are encouraged to register with Student Disability Services to verify their eligibility for appropriate accommodations.
