The purpose of this course is to introduce graduate students to some of the most significant scholarly works on the Market Revolution, ca. 1815-1850. Students will critically analyze historical monographs through class discussion and written reviews and will write either a research paper based on primary and secondary sources or a historiographical paper.

The learning outcomes for this course are that through these readings and written assignments you will be able to define the Market Revolution, explain the diverse manifestations of the Market Revolution, and understand the crucial place of the Market Revolution in American History.

Required Books:

Recommended Book:

Assignments:
Besides reading a book a week (or more) you will turn in a written review for four of the assigned weekly readings. (One of your reviews must be of the last reading by Kurt Anderson on March 19.) In addition, one week you will lead discussion of the weekly readings in class. Class discussion is central to this course and will form a significant part of your grade. Finally, you will write an article manuscript critique and a ~20 page research OR historiographical paper due at the end of the semester.

Doing the book reviews:
You will prepare professional-quality book reviews of each of your assigned weekly readings.
Professional quality means that your review could be published in an academic history journal, and, thus, the review should expose the author’s thesis and main supporting points, discuss and evaluate the evidence presented by the author to prove his/her thesis, suggest how this book fits into the historiography on that subject, and tell who the author is. Do NOT tell me that the book is “interesting” for that means absolutely nothing. Do tell me why the book is important, what its flaws (if any) are, and why we must all be familiar with its thesis in order to better understand the Market Revolution. Browse through the book reviews in the journals Reviews in American History, Journal of the Early Republic, William and Mary Quarterly (all are in the library or available online through the J-Stor database) for examples of what I am asking for. You may consult published reviews of the books you are working on, but do not copy and paste from them, as that is cheating, and I want to read your words not someone else’s. Each review should be double spaced and about 3 pages in length, no more than 4 pages and no less than 2.

Grading:
Written Reviews (4): 10% each 40%
Discussion Leadership 10%
Discussion Participation 20%
Final Paper 30%

100%
