Course Introduction:

Welcome to this online version of HIS218-03 The World in the Twentieth Century (Since 1945). This is a WEB based course in which you will cover the same material/content as in the face-to-face version that I frequently teach. Please read the syllabus very carefully and if you have any questions or concerns please feel free to ask. For those who also attend on-campus classes at UNCG, please feel free to see me during my offices hours or contact me for an appointment. For those who are true distance learners who rarely if ever come to campus, I am always available through email. This semester I have two online classes with approximately 120 students in addition to two face-to-face classes with approximately 75 students. I will always respond as quickly as possible to your emails, but please allow at least 24 hours for a response.

You will obviously need to have access to your Blackboard account for this class and a basic understanding of how Blackboard functions. All assignments, quizzes, exams, etc. will be posted there and you will have to make weekly response postings on forums that I will set up each week. Your assignment/quiz/exam grades will be available throughout the semester. Rather than receiving weekly grades on your forum postings, you will receive one overall grade on your participation at the end of the semester.

Required Texts:

Brower, Daniel R. The World since 1945: A Brief History Second Edition* (Upper Saddle River, NJ: Pearson/Prentice Hall, 2005).

Gladwell, Malcolm. What the Dog Saw: and other adventures ISBN 9780316076203

McCauley, Martin. Russia, America and the Cold War, 1949-1991 Second Edition* (New York: Pearson/Longman, 2004).

Learning Goals for this Course:

(These learning goals are applicable to both history majors and non-history majors alike.)

- Historical Comprehension: Students will be able to demonstrate proficiency in analyzing historical duration, succession, and change in terms of human agency and larger systems or structures in a wide variety of places and periods.
- Historical Analysis: Students will demonstrate ability to use historical thinking to contextualize and analyze primary and secondary sources representing different points of view.
- Historical Interpretation: Students will be able to use evidence-based reasoning to interpret the past coherently while developing and presenting original arguments in written form.

Procedures/Assignments:

It will be essential for you to keep up with your readings. If you follow the guidelines in the syllabus and don't allow yourselves to fall behind, you should have no trouble managing the workload for this class. Unlike a face-to-face class, discussion of your assigned readings, documentary films, etc., will be handled through weekly response postings on Blackboard. Your required discussion postings will be to a question or series of questions that I will post to create each week's discussion forum. With perhaps one or two exceptions there will be a discussion posting required for each week of the semester. In addition, you will also have weekly quizzes based on your textbook readings for that week. These quizzes will consist of 10 multiple choice questions and will have a 15 minute time limit. I will drop your two lowest quiz scores prior to calculating your final grades.

Attendance:

As this is a WEB based class, normal attendance guidelines do not apply. However, while you will have a certain amount of flexibility in completing assignments/quizzes, etc., please be aware that ALL assignments/quizzes/exams in this course have a time frame in which they must be completed! Students who repeatedly miss deadlines and/or frequently seek exemptions to stated guidelines—for whatever reason—will be dropped from the course. Any student who wishes to receive a grade of "W" must drop the class on or before Friday, March 7. For the purpose of organizing assignments and due dates, etc. consistently throughout the semester, each academic week will begin on Monday and end at 11:59pm the following Sunday.
