HIS 403: Topics in African American History
“From Blaxploitation to the Birth of the B-Boy: Black Popular Culture in the 1970s”
Course Syllabus

The 1970s witnessed an explosion of black popular culture unseen since the Harlem Renaissance of a half century before. A product of the economic, political, and social transformations that shaped black life in this critical decade, black art, both high and low, represented the voice of a people articulating their distinctive vision of American identity. This course will examine the history of black popular culture as well as the context and controversies connected to its creation. In addition to the rise of black artists in music, television, and film, this course will explore other topics such as Afrofuturism, black theater and literature, and the birth of hip hop.

Course Requirements: The requirements for this course include assigned readings and audiovisual materials, in-class assignments, short papers, and one presentation. Assignments submitted in class are due at the beginning of the class period. Students who submit assignments after the deadline will be penalized with a grade deduction based on the lateness of the assignment. No assignments will be accepted one week after the due date. All assignments must be submitted in hard copy.

Assigned Course Materials: There are two books and several articles and excerpted chapters assigned for this course. The books can be purchased at the University Bookstore and the shorter readings are available on Canvas. In addition, students are required to purchase, rent, or stream various audiovisual materials.

Electronic Devices: The use of laptops, tablets, cellular phones, or any other type of electronic device is prohibited during class.

Attendance and Late Policy: Attendance in class is mandatory. The door will close ten minutes after class starts. Once the door closes, students will no longer be admitted to the class and will be considered absent. Students are allowed one absence, excused or unexcused, without an impact on their grade. For the second and every subsequent absence, students will receive a five-point grade deduction.

Plagiarism Policy: The University defines plagiarism as intentionally or knowingly “representing the words of another, as one's own in any academic exercise.”¹ (See academic integrity violations for further information.) All sources (books, articles, documents, etc.) used in any paper or assignment must be properly cited or will be considered plagiarism. Any instance of plagiarism will receive a zero and will be referred to the Office of Student Rights and Responsibilities for appropriate action, including suspension or expulsion from the University.
