In this course, students will practice and master historical thinking skills. Using the Cold War experience in Latin America, students will analyze primary sources, articulate arguments in secondary literature, learn proper citation skills, pose refined research questions, and articulate compelling evidenced-based arguments through a variety of written work. In learning about the historian’s craft, students will think about change and continuity over time, contingency, human agency, and the multifaceted historical context that shaped and was shaped by local actors. This course ultimately seeks to prepare students to successfully complete a research paper and fulfill the requirements for a history BA.

Learning Goals
This is a writing intensive and research-intensive course. This means that students will be expected to practice and master all the skills necessary to complete a long research paper in HIS-411. In this course, students will:
- Gain a broad understanding of the historiography of the Latin American Cold War
- Analyze a variety of primary and secondary source materials
- Design a research project
- Find and evaluate appropriate sources
- Learn citation methods
- Articulate an argument using a variety of sources and synthesize research materials in writing

Course Assignments and Expectations

Attendance: This is a hands-on course organized to prepare you to complete a 6–8-page research paper on a topic of your choosing. Each in-class and at-home assignment/activity builds upon the former. As such, attendance is required. Coming to class prepared and completing all assignments on time will ensure your success in this course. However, since Covid-19 related illnesses and other unexpected circumstances can arise, I encourage you to communicate with me so we can create a plan to help you catch up on your work should you have to miss class.

Participation: This class will be primarily discussion-based and hands on, and as such I expect all students to actively participate in our conversations. This means coming to class prepared, having read the assignments carefully ahead of time, and bringing questions/issues/doubts that you would like to discuss. In class, I expect all students to contribute through attentively listening to your classmates’ ideas and offering your own.

Short Assignments: These in-class and home assignments will prepare you to successfully complete a research paper. Some of these assignments include the submission of a research topic, the submission of a draft introduction and historiography section, and more.

Secondary Source Analysis: You will write a 2-page analysis on the historiography portion of Cold War Latin America. This will be based on assigned secondary sources.

Primary Source Analysis: You will write a 2-page analysis of assigned primary sources on Cold War Latin America. This exercise will help you work with multiple and contradictory sources.

Annotated Bibliography: You are expected to find 6-8 primary and secondary sources that are relevant to your chosen research topic. You will write a one paragraph summary of each source, identifying the argument/main point of each, contextualizing the sources, and stating how each source relates to your chosen research question.

Essay Draft: You will submit a complete draft of your 6–8-page essay, on which you will receive instructor and peer feedback.

Final Draft: Everything we will do this semester will lead to the production of a refined 6-8-page research paper on a topic of your choosing. While you are free to choose a topic that most interests you, remember that it must relate to the theme of the Cold War and Latin America. Some possible approaches include the Inter-American Cold War, US policies toward Latin America, journalistic accounts of the Cold War, US solidarity with Central America during the Cold War, etc.

At some point between the essay draft and final essay submission, I expect all students to bring their papers to the Writing Center.

A list of open access primary source repositories on Latin America will be provided in class.

COURSE POLICIES

COVID-19 University Policy

As we return for spring 2022, all students, faculty, and staff are required to uphold UNCG’s culture of care by actively engaging in behaviors that limit the spread of COVID-19. These actions include, but are not limited to:

- Following face-covering guidelines
- Engaging in proper hand-washing hygiene
- Self-monitoring for symptoms of COVID-19
- Staying home when ill
- Complying with directions from health care providers or public health officials to quarantine or isolate if ill or exposed to someone who is ill
- Completing a self-report when experiencing COVID-19 symptoms, testing positive for COVID-19, or being identified as a close contact of someone who has tested positive
• Staying informed about the University’s policies and announcements via the COVID-19 website

Instructors will have seating charts for their classes. These are important for facilitating contact tracing should there be a confirmed case of COVID-19. Students must sit in their assigned seats at every class meeting. Students may move their chairs in class to facilitate group work, as long as instructors keep seating chart records. Students should not eat or drink during class time.

A limited number of disposable masks will be available in classrooms for students who have forgotten theirs. Face coverings are also available for purchase in the UNCG Campus Bookstore. Students who do not follow masking requirements will be asked to put on a face covering or leave the classroom to retrieve one and only return when they follow the basic standards of safety and care for the UNCG community. Once students have a face covering, they are permitted to re-enter a class already in progress. Repeated issues may result in conduct action. The course policies regarding attendance and academics remain in effect for partial or full absence from class due to lack of adherence with face covering and other requirements.

For instances where the Office of Accessibility Resources and Services (OARS) has granted accommodations regarding wearing face coverings, students should contact their instructors to develop appropriate alternatives to class participation and/or activities as needed. Instructors or the student may also contact OARS (336.334.5440) who, in consultation with Student Health services, will review requests for accommodations.

Late assignment policy, make-ups: Missing an assignment will negatively impact the rest of your submissions since each assignment is designed to build upon the former. However, late assignments are accepted and will be penalized 10%, or one letter grade per day late. The one exception to this policy is the final paper, for which I will not accept late work.

Disruptive Behavior: Arriving late, packing up or leaving early, and talking during class are a few common examples of disruptive classroom behavior. These will not be tolerated.

Respectful engagement with peers: The classroom is an academically productive and safe environment for students to express their opinions and ask questions. History is controversial, and sensitive themes will be discussed in this class. Students are expected to treat their classmates with respect and maturity, and any behavior that inhibits productive academic engagement will not be permitted.

Contacting your Professor: Please call me Dr. or Professor Jashari (YA-SHAH-REE) and contact me via email (d_jashari@uncg.edu). During weekdays, you can expect a reply within 24 hours; on weekends, I will not reply. Please plan accordingly. Structure your emails in a professional way and be mindful of your tone.

Academic Integrity: I take violations of academic integrity very seriously. Please ask me if you have any questions about what constitutes plagiarism and know that it will not be tolerated in this classroom. Enrollment in this course and submission of each written assignment constitute students’ acceptance of UNCG’s Academic Integrity Policy. You can find a copy of the full policy at: http://academicintegrity.uncg.edu/complete/.
The following is the University's definition of plagiarism:
Representing the words, thoughts, or ideas of another, as one’s own in any academic exercise.

Plagiarism may occur on any paper, report, or other work submitted to fulfill course requirements.
Faculty should take into account whether the student has had the opportunity to learn appropriate citation procedures based on previous course work successfully completed before formalizing Academic Integrity charges. Examples of plagiarism include, but are not limited to, the following:

- submitting work done by another, whether a commercial or non-commercial enterprise, including the Internet, as one’s own work
- failure to properly cite references and/or sources
- submitting, as one’s own, work done by or copied from another including work done by a fellow student, work done by a previous student, or work done by anyone other than the student responsible for the assignment

Office of Accessibility Resources and Services (ods.uncg.edu/): Students who have documented disabilities that require accommodation should register with OARS and bring in the required paperwork during the first week of class. No accommodations can be made without the appropriate paperwork from OARS.

Information Technology Services (its.uncg.edu/): Your source for all tech problems, including computer malfunctions, issues with Canvas, etc. The professor cannot help you with these!

University Writing Center (writingcenter.uncg.edu/): Provides help with paper structure, argument, grammar, style, etc.
